

TAYLER RAYFORD

I am a recent graduate from Alabama A&M University with a Master's in early childhood education. I bring an extensive background of success in this field, along with the qualifications which are required to make a positive impact in this role.

During her graduate career I worked as a Graduate Research Assistant for Teaching Reading and attended the AACTE Teacher Leadership conference in New Orleans. Previously she's been accepted into the Gandhi-King Scholar Initiative Program exploring the legacies of Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr. My abilities include planning activities and selecting materials that will help the children learn how to express themselves verbally while promoting creativity. She has a real desire to work with children and the ability to make a connection with their families. She's enthusiastic and has the ability and patience to work with all children, including those with special needs to ensure they are receiving the best care.
